

THIS IS MY CITY INC. brings together Thomas Beug, a 6ft 8' Irish National Frisbee player cum award winning New York agency producer/director and Tim Kafalas, a small town Rhode Island video nerd cum MTV music video editor/lady-killer.

Thomas Beug

Growing up in the south of Ireland of a German father and an American mother, Thomas was a born wanderer. Once he reached 6ft, 8" he decided it was time to stop growing up and has remained that height and age ever since.

After graduating with an honors degree in English and German literature from Trinity College Dublin, Thomas fulfilled a longtime desire to move to New York City where he began a career in advertising and film. He worked for Publicis as an associate producer and produced his first campaign for Heifer International, which was launched by Susan Sarandon on the Martha Stewart Show.

After Publicis, Thomas worked as a producer and director at Droga5, Creativity Magazine's Agency of the Year for 2007. Here Thomas produced multiple TV campaigns for Tracfone, Rhapsody, Guitar Hero and The New Museum along with award-winning integrated campaigns for Steinlager, The Tap Project and The New York Board of Education.

Thomas continued to expand his portfolio at Droga5 and took on the role of director for a global Adidas campaign. Coming off that, he directed and produced a documentary about Usain Bolt's return to Jamaica after his success at the Beijing Olympics. In 2008 Thomas also directed a short film about love and rats called "The Spotter", which featured in the 2009 film festival circuit.

When he isn't engrossed in multiple film and video projects Thomas can be seen enjoying himself up front at concerts, throwing a Frisbee with great precision, attending to his green fixed gear bicycle or sinking his teeth into a pint of cold, creamy Guinness.

View reel at <http://thisismycity.tv/Thomas>

Contact:
Thomas Beug
347.204.6108
thomas@thisismycity.tv